Sunday issue of this paper. These details were decided at a meeting of the committee held yesterday. A complete schedule of all the games to be bowled will appear on the sporting page of The Times-Dispatch Monday.

Entries far in excess of what was originally expected have been received. Many of these names are those of men who have never before been seen on any public alley. Every member of the Richmond Bowling Association will compete. Altogether there should be something like 200 bowlers in the tournament—not at all a bad showing for the first event of its kind every pulled off in Richmond.

The fact that all those in any way connected with a bowling alley mave been barred has given continence to a number of bowlers who would not otherwise have entered. In addition to the crisis have entered. In addition to the crisis have entered. In addition to bowling tournament ever held in Richmond.

At the meeting held yesterday every detail of the tournament was discussed, not a single thing which would help the contestants was overlooked. A committee composed of Messrs, Meraliand, Whitman and Maibert was created. This committee will have entire charge of the tourney, will hear complaints and will settle disputes. Secretay Goetz, of the Richmond Bowling Association, was named secretary of the tournament. Official scores of the several rounds required will be printed daily in The Times-Disputch.

Through the generosity of the Newport and Palace Alleys, money has keep to qualify for the linal rounds. This should add considerable to the interest in the tournament.

The entry blank, which appears in each issue of this paper, and which will only the continue to appear, including Saturdary, when the entry list closes, should be filled in at once and deposited at either the Newport or Palace Alleys, or with the Newport or Palace Alleys or with the Newport or Palace A liquid the wees of the Virginia League. On that occasion the board rendered its decision, which seems to have anale matters more choose than ever before. There is one way, and one way only, for the present Virginia League matter to get back before the board. That is for charges to be preferred against C. R. Williams, the man who will hold over as prosident, unless the present deadlock is broken.

If charges are preferred the board will sit and will have a such charges. The claims of those presenting the charges will be weighed against the evidence of those who will seek to retute these charges. From a purely newspaper standpoint it might be well for the matter to get before the board on these grounds. It will make delicious copy, and vall of the dirty linen now locked in the closets of the Virginia League can be given a public washing and public airling.

But supposing, for instance, that the board is called upon to rule on the deadlock, let's see what are the facts. To take them in their logical order they are:

1. Lynchburg, Danville and Rich-control is concerned. By inference, at least, the impression has been attempted in certain quarters that Willams is interested in one or both of these clubs. Williams has dealed these charges. The burden of proof is therefore with his accusors. Williams's friends claim that his administration has been economical, just and successful.

Expects Great Season in Virginia League.

The following special, sont from The Times-Dispatch correspondent in Cincinnati, seems to indicate that the National Board of Arbitration will keep hands of in the Virginia League presidential dispute. While there is little doubt but that Prosident Wilhams will ask for a higher classification for the Virginia League, it is nevertheless doubtful if, such classification will be granted. The story follows:

Cincinnati, O., January 2.—President C. R. Williams, of the Virginia League, who is here attending the meeting of the national commission, says he will ask that that organization be raised to class "B" rating. He stated this evening that this is to be requested of the commission just as soon as they grant the class AA classification to the International League. Concert for Sheitering Arms.

The final arrangements have been completed for the benefit concort of the Sheitering Arms Free Hospital tonight in the City Auditorium, when Miza Malvern Patterson's Circle of King's Daughters, under whose direction it is given, will present Maud Powell, "The Queen of Living Violinists," and two such able assisting soloists as Mrs. John T. Trout, soprano, and Waldermar Linchowsky, planist.

When the violinist makes her appearance she will be greeted, it is safe to say, by one of the largest audiences of this season. Aside from her many gifts as a virtuose, the charity she is to play for has always commended itself to the generous public of Richmond.

During the last fifteen years this institution has labored with avery small endowment and such outside help as given it by various circles of King's Daughters, to alleviate the sufferings of those who cannot pay for treatment. Its strides have been stupendous. This particular benefit is to help defray the running expenses only, and it is hoped, after paying the musician engaged, to troble the financial success that has attended the former concerts undertaken for this cause.

Madame Powell will, at the conclusion of her third number, give an extra one, namely the finale movement from the Mendelssoan "E Minor Contects," This composition is in its entirety considered the supreme text for any violinist who destres to make professional appearances. In addition to this, the Rondos of Mozart in E and A major, with the "Ave Maria" of Schumbert-Wilhelmi, will form a brilliant bert-Wilhelmi, will form a brilliant who have more the beauty of the will be program.

They are trying to arrange a match between Al Palzer and Carl Morris up New York way. If Palzer can show the form he did against Kaufman, Morris should be sent back to Oklahoma. Just one thing is satisfying in connection with the frosty near-heavies; They have stopped calling them "white hopes." The National Commission is still commishing in Chichnati. From the front meagre information is obtainable. The ticket scandal is serving to keep the members from transacting any real business. When time gets short everything will be done in a hurry, including discussion of the Virginia League.

Washington, January 3.—How the Amalgamated Copper Company was financed and what speculation has been carried on in the Central of New Jersey and Reading Railroads by those controlling the National City Bank of New York, are some of the things named for specific investigation in resolutions presented to the House to-day by Representative Lindbergh, of Minacosta, in furtherance of the proposed inquiry into the money trust.

Representative Lindbergh is the originator of the proposed investigation. The ownership of the stocks in other financial institutions by national banks also is to be looked into, Mr. Lindbergh cited the organization of the First Trust and Savings Bank of Calcago by the First National Bank there the formation of the First National Bank of New York, and the recent organization of the National City Company by stockholders of the National City Company by the Company had disposed of the Stockholdings which were criticized.
